

Girls Rule Foundation Receives Challenge Grant from T.W. Lewis Foundation

PHOENIX, (July 13, 2018) – Girls Rule Foundation (GRF) has been awarded a challenge grant from the T.W. Lewis Foundation. This challenge grant is designed to encourage more individuals, corporations, and foundations to donate to this highly efficient program which helps girls become the next generation of leaders & world changers.

Girls Rule Foundation focuses on developing, inspiring, mentoring, and educating teen girls. Arizona is ranked one of the worst states to be a girl (please visit <http://girlsrulefoundation.org/statistics>). Disempowered girls often become disempowered women, which is why Girls Rule Foundation is committed to empower girls to become empowered women who contribute economically, intellectually, academically, and emotionally in our communities, country and the world.

We could not provide this life-changing work without the support and generosity of our donors. The $10,000 T.W. Lewis Foundation challenge grant will fund $1,000 for every new major gift of $1,000 or more from an individual, corporation, or foundation that has not previously donated more than $500 to Girls Rule within the last 12 months. Please contact Girls Rule Foundation to participate in this challenge grant. Inspire a girl. Change the world.

About Girls Rule Foundation: Since 2013, Girls Rule Foundation has been a leader in empowerment and leadership programs for girls ages 12-18. Our mission is to teach teen girls positive skill sets that will influence healthy choice making, create strong self-esteem, and build bright futures. We teach girls our 12 leadership principles through our five empowerment and leadership programs. Our vision is to help create a generation of girls who dream big and know they have the skills and confidence to make their bright futures happen. The Phoenix Business Journal awarded Girls Rule Foundation the highest honor at their Corporate Philanthropy Awards celebration in 2017.
